- The class forced me out of my confort zon and inspired me a lot.
- Emphasis on direct observation as a method for achieving believable abstraction helped me begin to develop a disciplined approach to my use of fluid media. I am more focused when beginning a work and have a clearer understanding of where I need to start my painting and how to proceed as I work.
- challenging projects helped build skills and expand thinking!
- the whole course was unorthodox nontraditional painting--i had no choice but to learn!! demonstrations of materials, class discussions and mini critiques helped us further our work with peer input
- I think blogging definitely helped in the learning process. While I was blogging, I was also reflecting and getting a deeper understanding of the media and my process.

- Sometimes I just don't understand the assignments and what you expect from us.
  - I am satisfied with the process of this course and found it very helpful.
  - sporadic? not a problem really just ad to adjust to loose schedule
- I really appreciate how our feedback helped shape how the class was. We also had options when it came to projects so nothing made really felt forced. I didn't feel as if I was some lowly student there to drink in the knowledge of my professor; I felt like an equal.

- As a class and as individuals we were encouraged to research our projects and to communicate with each other and the professor. Assignments were challenging, interesting, innovative, and fun! I enjoyed the process of each assignment and felt I learned something different from each one that added to my process and production as an artist.
- Thanks for teaching me how to see in a more nuanced way!
- We have wonderful critics which are intellectually challenging.
- learned a lot about myself and my capabilities as an artist
- This was a very challenging course, I was constantly pushing myself and I am extremely grateful for the experience.

- Please tell us what exactly you are expecting for assignments/blog/sketch books beforehand. And even when you want to take the "risk", please let us know that there would be something coming up latter. And you don't have to clarify what it is, just so we undersdang the whole process.
- The syllabus was discussed the first day of class and we were given the opportunity to ask questions.
- The plan for the course was somewhat unclear, or rather open ended, but the unplanned plan was clearly stated on teh first day of the class. Expectaions of students was made clear in teh syllabus, but became somewhat vague in class.
- Not much structure and often students were confused about when assignments were due and what was expected of them.
- I appreciate the flexibility inherent in the course, within the structure. It's a good mix.
- we had a syllabus...loose expectations/guidelines...pretty muich self scheduled for final project
- The class was defined in a way that we knew the basic skeleton of the course but the class was involved in finishing it.

- tutorials in beginning were helpful, maybe more emphasis on artistic aspect of digital work
- I liked that we took our time on everything, because I've never used a mac before and it took me a while to get accustomed to them.
- The course provides for instruction and hands on practice that work together to help the student progress.
- The critique days were good, I liked that there were a lot of work days.

- loved the freedom and having my own space

Professor Ruby has a knack for making each student feel comfortable and for helping the individual reach her highest artistic capabilities. She does so by giving honest critiques and by taking into account the strengths and weaknesses of the student. Through her encouragement and continued guidance I was able to undertake a story quilt as my final project for the Senior Capstone. I had no idea of how to use a sewing machine or how to create a finished quilt. Nell pointed me in the direction of valuable resources and I finished my quilt and I am now working on a series of memorial quilts for unsung heroes. This was more than a single project for me, it has become my artistic passion.

- This course is designed to enable the student to develop self direction in their work. Use of personal studio space facilitates this goal by allowing each student the opportunity to practice their craft as they would after graduation. The professor met with us both as a group and on individual basis throughout the semester, providing feedback and suggestions tailored to each of our projects. Beginning the semester by requiring a powerpoint presentation from each student that informed about their prior work and choice of projects.

- As I stated earlier, this course challenged me beyond my expectations. Having to do intense research on sewing machines, the anatomy of a sewing machine, the subjects of my quilt blocks as well as research the artists who have influenced me was exhausting! I even had to learn how to interview a well known artist so that I could complete my assignment for the Gallery Talk. This first assignment was challenging and a bit intimidating but learning first-hand how Brent Fogt creates his drawings helped me to focus on the process of creating and I learned a lot about myself as an artist.

- As seniors we were asked to expand our work and produce on a professional level. Feedback during the process was both challenging and always right on target. I was encouraged to pursue ideas and investigate methods without being directed. The project remained my own and input was always about problem solving which really helped me grow as an artist.

- Preparing for class was a must as I do not live on campus and I have a full-time job as a teacher. I knew I had to do my research and as much 'prep' work prior to class so that I would have items to share each session. It was also crucial to be present for critiques and listen to what everyone had to say so that I could get a feel as to how others would perceive my finished work. My professor and peers provided information that affected my choice of fabrics as well as how each quilt block should be presented. This process took longer but the results were well worth the extra effort. I am grateful for having everyone be honest and constructive during this course.
- I worked my rear end off!

I took this course 8 years ago but had to withdraw for medical and personal reasons. The course at that time was nowhere near as involved as it is now! Back then I felt like a student who had taken a ton of art courses--hoping to find a good 'use' for them from time to time. The current course and all of its requirements have caused me to come into my own as an 'artist' and know that there is a place for me in the art world.

We explored other artists who have influenced each of us and were given lists of other artists who might be useful to us. We were encouraged to enter art contests and got to experience what it is like to be active participants in the world of art. This was the best confidence booster of all.

- My peers have become my friends and I didn't feel so isolated this time around. Each artist had a voice and everyone produced a variety of works. In the past, I found it to be the case that the works produced closely resembled each other in style. Having our own studio created an intimate setting for creativity to take place. I found myself staying until after 8pm when class was over every Tuesday and Thursday. I spent the time mapping out my next step and having meaningful dialogue with my peers as to their thought process in creating meaningful artwork.

This was not always such a wise thing to do considering I had to ride MARTA to get back home--an almost 2 hour journey! I wouldn't trade this experience for anything in the world.

- I have flourished under the instruction I have received from the art department.

- a bit open ended, but thats kindof the point

The syllabus was comprehensive and detailed due dates as well as expectations/requirements for each project. We were allowed enough studio workdays to get our research done and critiques were always timely. We adhered to the schedule and if any changes were made Nell made sure to give us a revised schedule in advance so that we would be prepared.

- "A great teacher leads students to problems which are solvable." This is a quote I came across at another college during my first semester and I have never forgotten it. This course was rigorous and challenging every step of the way but Nell is well-versed in technique and information to help students get past hurdles. She does this while being encouraging and she is always confident in our ability to complete each assignment which always made me think..."If she believes I can do this, then perhaps I can."
- Having Nell Ruby as an instructor has been a pleasure.
